Marginal Column By ZE'BV LAQUEUR

THE less said about the new I Egyptian constitution the better. It resembles nothing so much as the famous Soviet "Stalin constitution" so [1936, an excellent document as far as it goes, which can be accepted by practically everybody but which has not the alightest practical significance. It is an ernament of the regime (a piece of paper, unkind critics would say) and nothing more. This did not of course prevent some political observer in the Western world from producing the usual twaddle about a "Marxist Leftwing Constitution" in Egypt, though Abdul Namer's constitution is about as Marxist as Stalin's is democratic. Far more interesting was the speech of the Egyptical drom producing the usual twaddels about a "Marxist, Leftwing Constitution" in Egypt, though Abdul Nasser's constitution is about as Marxist as Stalin's is democratic. Far more interesting was the speech of the Egyptian Prime Minister on that occasion in Liberation Square, which unfortunately has not been reported in detail outside Egypt.

THE Egyptian junta (and M. Peojade's movement) have no recology of their own and not even a weather-proof mystique. They have some well-defined enemies: the Jaws in both cases the tax collector in France and "Imperialism" in Egypt But for a movement in power this is not enough in the long run, it needs something more tangible. This is a problem which faced the Egyptian national movement long before Gamal Abdul Nasser. Other national movement have educated themselves through a revival of the native language, literature, law and legend. But Egypt had no such national genius to revive, no national gionies to recall since the days of the Pharsohs which were followed by 2,500 years in which Egypt lost all consciousness of her existence. In his Liberation Square speech Gamal Abdul Nasser made an interesting attempt to find some new starting point to rewrite history.

"ITIZENS, this is your day," he said. For this day the people have struggled. Since when? "It is the closing chapter of a long battle against aggressive foreign domination and against exploiting domestic documents of the parties to the Armistice Agreements, while the stationing Stressing that the bame for Stressing that the bame for Square speech. Gamal Abdul Nasser made an interesting attempt to find some new starting point, to rewrite history.

"CITIZENS, this is your day," he said. For this day the people have struggled. Since when? "It is the closing chapter of a long battle against exploiting domestic domination." which began late in the 18th century, when the Egyptian people rose to demand their freedom, a constitution, their right to live. The Mamelukes refused to let the people participate in governing its homeland, "But the people forced them to fulfil its wishes and the Mamelukes signed a document of submission: It this they said that they repented and reformed and peace was concluded on these terms." The people were happy when the Mamelukes signed this document and trusted that they would apply it. But the Mamelukes betrayed them and reverted to their past conduct. The people continued to fight until 1805, when they resisted the domination of the Turkish governor and demanded another constitution. So the people met and the 'ulemas met.

Stressing that the biame for the unsatisfactory situation along the border was due to Arab aggressive initiative, he said that the Egyptians along the Gaza Strip were shooting almost daily at Israel patrols without provocation. If Egypt, like Israel, did not want a third party to enter the field, it was up to her to remove the origin of this proposal by ordering and observing a complete cease-fire.

Reports that American Jewish leaders were pressing Israel to give up part of her territory, were denied by Mr. Moshe Sharett. On the contrary, there are signs that American leaders, Jewish and non-Jewish, are now nearer the view that it was unfair and unnecessary to press Israel for territorial conce-

He expressed indignation at the "base attacks" on General Catroux, and declared that "no-body is better qualified than he to defend the honour of the country and its higher interests.

M. Mollet said that the Government, which was "in complete solidarity" with General Catroux, "affirms that in no case will the final future status of Algeria be imposed unilaterally."

M. Mollet is to fly to Algiers on Monday to tackie personally the restoration of order in Algeria where 18,000 rebels are tying down over 200,000 French

U.S. Bans Travel To Hungary

WASHINGTON, Saturday (Reuter).—The U.S. Government yesterday banned the travel of American citisens to Hungary. This was announced in a State Department note which accused the Hungarian Government of persecuting Hungarian employees of the American Legation in Budapest and in cartaling freedom of the press.

The U.S. also "no longer considers feasible" the possibility of talks with the Hungarian Government on various problems between the two countries, the note said. More than a year ago the Budapest Government indicated a desire to discuss trade problems with Wash-

Premier Samir Rifa'l of Jordan who returned to Amman on Friday from Damascus and Beirut had told the Syrian Fremier, Said el Ghazi, that his country is determined to remain neutral in the current Calrobashod dispute, and that she also desires a meeting of the Foreign Ministers of all Arabi League member States to discuss the offer of Syria, Egypt and Saudi Arabia to aid the Hashemite Kingdom Sanacially.

This was reported by NKABS, quoting a statement by el Ghazi in Damascus yesterday. It was interpreted as Jordan's desire to include Iraq in discussions on the aid offer, which the triple Arab alliance wants to see displacing the British grant. Previously, the plan was to call a meeting of Foreign Ministers of the four interested Arab states only.

It was reported that Rifa'l p.: squarely to el Ghazi Jordan's views on the offer, especially that he Government whom the course of previously that he Government whom the course of the state only.

Thousands of spectators lined the pavements and applauded the marchers as they made their way, headed by standard bearers from a central square to the city war memorial. The demonstrators shouted "Algeria for the French" and "Down with Catroux."

The loudspeakers of a radio van announced above the din the text of a telegram which the exservicemen have sent to President Rene Coty. It said: "The maintenance of General Catroux (in his post) means the collapse of Algeria and French Africa.
His arrival in Algiers will be met by an irresistible movement of the people."

Five persons were injured when a Moslem threw a grenade into a crowd of ex-servicemen meeting at Boufarik, near here.
The crowd marched on the local hespital to lynch the terrorist who, himself injured by the grenade, had been taken there. He was smuggled out through a side door and taken to Algiers.

One person was killed and eight were injured earlier today when rioting broke out among dock workers in the port of Oran. The crowds stoned 15 cars, set others on fire and attacked two bases, About 20 shops were sacked.

The conference did not produce any solid results of great importance but it has been very hard work; and it says a lot for the stamine and resilience of the British Prime Minister that he looks so well at the end of it. The job of being Prime Minister of Britian is no more a picnic than the job of being President of the U.S.

ter and that the bilateral agreement might work against the cause of peace.

The replies will not mean that the U.S. is closing the door to any constructive Soviet proposals for an East-West settlement. But the feeling in the State Department is that no useful purpose is being served by continuing a correspondence through which the Soviet Union has been able to publicize and dramatize propaganda statements differing little from those put out by Communist radiostations and newspapers.

More Overtures WASHINGTON, Saturday.
Though the actual results of the Washington talks have so far been meagre, there are signs that the two Governments mean to follow up the preliminary work done. The urgent question is still that of Israel.

It may surprise Americans to know it, but British sympathy and understanding for Israel is at an all-time high, and if the forthcoming talks between Britain, France and the U.S. do not give Israel the sense of security she deserves, I have a feeling that it won't be the fault of the British Government. It might be the fault of the Standard Oil Co., of New Jersey, whose persuasive influence is immeasurably greater than anyone supposes. "John D. Rockefeller's body lies a'mouldering in the grave, but his oil goes marching. on." Arameo poured out $120m. to the Saudi Arabians last year. That is what the trouble is mostly fabout, but this requires a special exposition.

Technical Brilliance

Sir Anthony Eden put up a brilliant technical performance in his 15-minute nation-wide television speech last night. Though he did not have very much to say, he said it very well, and it was certainly a great improvement on his party political broadcast in England two weeks ago.

Any doubts that anyone may have had about the state of Sir Anthony's health, were dispelled by the jaunty and debonair way in which he appeared and spoke before both, Houses of Congress on Thursday morning.

Because we concluded the Western European Union, which I am proud to have taken part in myself, for association with free countries of the West I am not personally entirely convinced of the value of a new arrangement so soon after the treaty we signed with Russia has been torn up.

TRENCH ATTITUDE

The French Foreign Office suggested today that some of the obstacles to understanding between East and West should be removed before France concludes a friendship treaty with the Soviet Union.

A Quai d'Orsay statement said that the French Government is happy to note that President Eisenhower's reply to marshal Bulganin's first message encouraged the latter to continue the dialogue and maintain contact with the West.

In his second letter to President Elsenhower within a week, Soviet Premier Nikolais Bulgania on Thursday renewed his appeal for a 20-year treaty of friendship and offered to sign similar pacts with Britain, France and other European nations in the Western camp.

He blamed the U.S. and her Elsenhower had rejected his in tital bid for a treaty.

Asking Mr. Eisenhower for "further ideas" on the pack, Marshal Bulgania said that such a treaty would mean a ban by their two countries on the use of atom or hydrogen bombs on each other. This, he said, "would indeed have a calming effect on the international situation" and create more favourable conditions for reaching agreement on and Middle East, which includes

EDEN HELPS TO FREE BETAR DEMONSTRATORS
WASHINGTON, Saturday (INA)—Sir Anthony Eden personally intervened on Thursday through diplomatic channels to bring about the release of 12 Betar members who were arrested for demonstrating against him. Police set free five adults and seven juveniles.

The police said that they had violated a district law by picketing within 500 feet of an embassy. The 12 carried placards which read "No Munich sell out for Israel; Eden go home," and "Ugly head of Munich rises again." They also carried a coffin and an umbrella, described as the "symbol of appeasement."

follow showing the way to peace in the Middle East.

Eden, writes "Davar" (Histaturut), did not come to Washington to save us or the Middle East but only to set America to help him save the last vestiges of Britain's position as a world power and its declaive influence in the region. Whatever the statement says, it does not show the way to achieve peace in the Middle East.

"Herei" says that political pronouncements cannot hide the lack of any crystallized western policy against Soviet expansion in Africa, Asia and the Middle East, which cannot be formulated so long as the West will not see political and social facts as they really are. Among its fillusions, are that Communism and Islam are "unmarriageable" (note how the Cyprus disturbances have been so defly exploited by Communist agents and Arab nationalists); that Israel must make concessions for the sake of peace and a Western guarantee. No such guarantee is territorial integrity, military independence and a destrict upon us: the only guarantee is territorial integrity, military independence and a determined resolve to fight political pressure no less than throw back an armed attack.

Betting Rife At Jerusalem 'Derby'

A lucky first half goal gave victory over their local rivals, Hapoel, before a crowd of more than 5,000 at the Y.M.C.A. stadscored by Simon in the 20th minute. Hapoel pressed strongly and, particularly in the second half, were overwhelmingly super-ior, but they just could not score. Betar goalile Levy played a fine game.

Hundreds of pounds changed hands in bets on the sidelines where regular bookies have established themselves without interference from the police. Jerusalem football fans bitterly complain that no foreign teams are being brought to the capital, while even such small places as Natanya are getting a change to see international matches.

There seems to be sound gense in President Eisenbower's view that while a triendship treaty is desirable, the mein provisions of such a pact are, in fact, already part and parcel of the United Nations Charter, which is binding on helb countries. part and parcel of the United Nations Charter, which is binding on both countries. There is much to be said for the American view that the peaceful solution of some of the outstanding problems between East and West would go farther towards bettering relations between them than the best-intentioned document. What political phraseology, for instance, however great the foresight that went into its drafting, could preclude such an "ordinary commercial transaction" as the Czechoslovak deal with Exypt, exchanging tanks and planes for cotton and rice?

The Adagio and Fugue sounded as bad as a school orchestra performance. The "Haffner," electrifying in its tempi, was slurred over and imprecise in its fast movements.

Miss Joel-Brun would do better not to sing Mozart. She has not grasped the style fully, and presents him with a provincial air with a flavour of operetta thrown in.
